FOSSILS & MINERALS

FOSSIL DINOSAUR BONE SPHERES

Dinosaur bones that are not needed for scientific study are sometimes shaped into spheres. Our supply from the African island of Madagascar dates to the late Cretaceous period, 65 to 70,000,000 years ago. The fossil spheres are primarily tan or brown with some black veining. The hollow cell structure, which has been re-placed with Agate, is evident on the surfaces.

SPIRALITE GEM SHELL

#IGM-159024-3

Estimated to be over 100 million years old, each of these shell/geodes is the unusual left hand coiling kind which is a rarity in the domain of shells. Completely agatized and replaced by stunning Quartz druzies in a myriad of colors and crystal types, makes each one a unique and desirable gem that treads the boundary between fossil and crystals.

Found in Central India, these geodes are found embedded in an extremely hard rocky matrix and each one has to be carefully extracted by hand.
